The White House has referred to us a copy of a letter which [redacted] wrote to the President about you and your possible interest in Government service.

We understand that you might be willing to take part in some phase of work connected with international affairs while on a leave of absence from your present position but that you are not considering Government service on a career basis. We have not located any immediate requirement which would take advantage of your background and experience but shall keep you in mind for needs which might develop in the future. If a suitable opportunity should develop, we shall get in touch with you to inquire about your interest in it.

Sincerely,

Your name has been brought to our attention as a result of your recent correspondence with <sup>Senator</sup> ~~Senator~~ Walter concerning your interest in employment with the Department of State. We have reviewed our file on your previous applications for service with this organization but do not have any details on your activities since 1958, at which time we understood you were interested in career opportunities outside the field of law.

Although we have nothing specific in mind for you at this time, we would be very glad to hear from you concerning your present employment interests and to review the opportunities which might be of interest to you here. If you would like to explore these possibilities, would you let us hear from you.

Sincerely,

E. D. Echols

Remarks:

25X1  is one of the two applicants recently referred to us by the White House. He had been called to their attention by Senator Walter who had referred him to Dept of State.

25X1  and was scheduled for civilian employment as GS-9 in 1953 but a series of personal problems precluded appointment at that time. He later earned a degree in law and reapplied in 1957 and in 1958 (by which time he indicated he did not want lawyer position) but was rejected for lack of suitable opening both times. Senator Walter wrote on his behalf in 1959 and in 1960 but no follow through in updating application and case was closed out.
